Transitional Care... Your Path to Wellness

Transitional care is the terminology used when a short-term clinical or therapeutic service is needed for a patient's continued recovery.

At Landerbrook Transitional Care Center, it's our priority to coordinate a successful transition as a patient moves through the continuum of healthcare services. Whether referred from the hospital setting, physician office, or community, a patient admitting to Landerbrook can expect a customized care plan and treatment approach, relative to their wellness needs, with the common goal of returning home.

As healthcare professionals, we understand that while setbacks happen, it's the recovery process that matters most. You can count on our therapy, nursing, and physician leadership to maximize your abilities while also managing your acute medical needs.

Technology driven, state-of-the art equipment, and accommodations in a relaxing environment promote patient's recovery successes at Landerbrook Transitional Care Center.

Let Landerbrook Transitional Care Center connect you with the quality care you need to return home.
